1ST DEGREE MURDER CHARGED AGAINST MAN SOUGHT AS MRS. GERBES' SLAYER

Bricker Unhurt As Assassination Tried

EX-POLICEMAN FIRES 2 SHOTS

"Just Trying To Refresh Memory," Nabbed Suspect Says.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 12—Two pistol shots were fired at Senator Bricker (R-Ohio) in the senate subway today and a few minutes later officers arrested a suspect they described as a former member of the Capitol police force.

Senate Sergeant at Arms Edward L. McGinnis identified the suspect as William L. Kaiser. The arrest was made by metropolitan police in the northwest part of the city.

"Jogging Memory"

Kaiser told reporters with a shrug of his shoulders and a wry smile:

"I was just trying to refresh his memory."

Bricker previously had described his assailant as a disgruntled patronage seeker.

Bricker, the 1944 Republican vice presidential candidate, was not harmed. Investigating police said they discovered a fresh chip in the subway wall apparently caused by a bullet from the gun fired near where the senator waited to board a car to take him from the senate office building to the Capitol.

Bricker himself had expressed belief the shots were blanks, saying he did not hear the bullets whine.

Kaiser, described by senate officials as an Ohioan, declined to say whether the gun was loaded with real bullets.

Recognizes Assailant

Bricker told reporters he had recognized his assailant who fled after firing the two shots—one from about 15 feet away and another from about 150 feet. Capitol police immediately began a search for the man whom Bricker described as a disgruntled patronage seeker.

Bricker possibly was saved from injury as he jumped into a subway car which carried him away from the scene. The man ran after the car to fire a second time.

J. H. MacComber, clerk of the senate expenditures committee, who accompanied the Ohio senator, also escaped injury.

Apparently unperturbed, Bricker continued to the senate chamber. He told reporters the man had protested to him several times about losing money in the failure of a building and loan association in Columbus, Ohio, "about 15 years ago."

Acted As D.A.

He explained that when he was assistant attorney in Ohio he had sued for liquidation of the association.

"The time he asked me 'When am I going to get my money back that was stole,'" Bricker said. He told the man he was sorry if you lost money but there is nothing I can do about it. That was 15 years ago."

He said the men had been appointed to the capitol police force by former Senator Huffman (D-O), Bricker's predecessor.

Asked whether the man had been removed from the force through any action of yours," Bricker replied in the negative.

Here is Bricker's account of the shooting:

"I came down from my office in the senate office building subway with Mr. MacComber and we were talking about attending the governors' conference.

"Then somebody out of the corner of my eye and then I heard a shot go off. I recognized the sound. He was about 15 feet away.

"MacComber and I jumped on the subway car and I told the motorman to get going because there was a crazy guy shooting at us.

"We both crouched down in the car and the fellow came running after the car and fired another shot. He then was about 150 feet away.

"I think it was a blank cartridge because I did not hear any bullet strike.

"I came on up to the senate

COLLEGE CHIEF TO HEAD NEA

Education Group Elects Utah Junior College President Glenn E. Snow.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, July 12—Glenn E. Snow, 47-year-old president of Dixie Junior college at St. George, Utah, today shouldered the responsibility of directing for the next year newly-defined policies of the National Education association on questions ranging from teacher welfare to world peace.

The election of Snow, to succeed Mrs. Pearl A. Wanamaker of Olympia, Wash., as president, was announced last night at a general session which concluded the five-day NEA convention.

Earlier, delegates adopted resolutions which:

Advocated a world conference for the purpose of strengthening the United Nations by a system of world law;

Urged congress to enact "such legislation as may be required to provide an adequate national defense" and, without making direct reference, expressed disapproval of proposed universal military training;

Endorsed federal aid to education;

Condemned strikes by teachers;

$2,400 Salary Asked

Urged annual salaries of at least $2,400 for elementary and secondary teachers with yearly increases until the pay reaches $5,000 or above; and favored at least four years of training for teachers, with an ultimate goal of five years, elimination of emergency teaching certificates, and programs to encourage high school graduates to become teachers.

The resolution on national security urged that the world conference "be called at the earliest possible date."

A resolution urged congress to provide federal aid, "without federal controls," to all public elementary and secondary schools, give the states financial aid in meeting school housing needs, sustain school lunch programs "without restriction to funds used for matching," and make payments to the states "to compensate for loss of local revenue resulting from federally-owned property."

Miss Helen M. Malloy of Hartford, Conn., offered an amendment to this resolution urging congress to "take immediate action to sustain transportation and health services to non-public schools," but her proposal was defeated in a voice vote.

CHIPS DOWN IN TAX CUT FIGHT

G.O.P. Leadership Threatens Continuous Session To Jam Bill Through.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 12—The senate knocked down today a proposal to delay income tax cutting legislation at least until 1948 and then drove toward final action, possibly late today.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 12—The G. O. P. leadership threatened to keep today's senate session going on into the night if necessary to obtain passage of the tax cut bill.

With approval of the measure conceded, main interest centered on the size of the majority as a yardstick to show whether President Truman's forthcoming second veto can be overridden.

The no-quarter maneuvering by both sides to line up their forces for that test went on grimly behind the scenes.

Plan Night Session

Determined to send the bill to the White House quickly, assistant Majority Leader Wherry (R-Neb.) said he planned a rare Saturday night session unless the senate accepted during the day the bill already repassed by the house to slash income taxes 30 to 10.5 per cent beginning Jan. 1.

Senator Barkley (Ky.), the Democratic leader, asked Wherry during debate late yesterday whether he proposed a Sunday session.

"We'll cross that river when we come to it," the Nebraskan snapped.

A two-thirds majority of both houses is required to make the bill law over Mr. Truman's objections. Such a ratio appears likely in the house, where the bill passed 302 to 112. The division of sentiment in the senate, however, admittedly is much closer.

Supporter Is Ill

Senator Wagner (D-NY) counted as a sure supporter of the veto, is ill at his home and cannot be present for the big showdown.

Senator Tobey (R-NH), who voted for the first tax bill, was called to his New Hampshire home because of illness in his family.

Should both Wagner and Tobey be absent when the senate considers overriding the veto, 62 out of the remaining 93 votes could make it law. Supporters of the cut say they can count at least 60 favorable votes.

Administration Democrats say they will not permit a vote on overriding the veto before Tuesday, when Senator Elbert Thomas (D-Utah) is expected back from an international labor conference in Switzerland.

ACCUSED SLAYER OF KENTON GIRL "SANE"

By International News Service

BELLEFONTAINE, O., July 12—Roger "Tug" Williams, 33, of New Hampshire, who is under indictment for the first-degree murder of his former housekeeper, Minta Webb Rothwell, 25, of Kenton, was ruled sane today.

Dr. E. L. Hooper, superintendent of the Dayton State hospital, reported to Logan county Common Pleas Judge Elmer L. Godwin that it was his opinion and that of a five-member medical board that Williams was sane at the time the crime was committed and is sane today.

The findings were based on a 30-day observation period of the alleged murderer.

Williams is being held at the Logan county jail in Bellefontaine without bond. He is awaiting trial for allegedly shooting the young girl after she was reported to have refused him a date.

29 Others Hurt in Accident Near Lebanon; Hospital Beds Jammed.

By The Associated Press

LEBANON, O., July 12—Emergency beds still took up every inch of space in the Blair Brothers' little hospital here today as result of a bus accident late yesterday which killed one person and injured 29 others, four critically.

All had a close brush with death because three hours after a King Brothers bus left the highway and fell over on its side in Clear creek near Ridgeville, the vehicle burst into a sheet of flame and was destroyed. There were 35 passengers on the bus.

It was believed the fire started in the wrecked carrier's air conditional equipment. Assistant Chief Marlow Rich of the Lebanon fire department said.

William Bagford, 24, of Sharonville, a driving instructor for the bus line, was killed in the crash.

16 Nations Begin Aid Conference at Paris

By The Associated Press

PARIS, July 12—Representatives of 16 nations plunged today into the task of reorganizing their national resources in a cooperative effort to speed the recovery of Europe's economy.

In an hour-long first session, the conference on economic cooperation, elected British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin as its president and named a committee of 16 to weigh British suggestions for implementing the Marshall proposal for American-backed European reconstruction.

Bevin, smiling amiably throughout the session, pledged the support of the entire British commonwealth of nations toward the success of this unique venture in international relations and expressed regret that Russia was not represented.

Russia and eight of her neighbors, by choice, and Spain, by exclusion, are not represented. However, the flags of Russia and her neighbors are among the others flanking the conference table—a symbol of the repeated assurance by the western powers that the door still was open for their participation.

Reiterate Assurance

Both Bevin and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, who welcomed the delegates, reiterated this assurance in their addresses, and both denounced the Soviet objection that the British-French proposals for economic cooperation would constitute a danger to the sovereignty of smaller nations.

"The time has come," Bevin declared, "to remake Europe, and this conference is not in any way directed against any state or group of states."

Bidault rejected the Polish charge, made when Poland turned down the invitation to the conference, that the meeting would help Germany before other nations which fought the Germans.

"The resources of Germany ought to be utilized for Europe, Germany included," Bidault said. "The hour has come to construct a Europe put, as a great French voice—that of Aristide Briand—proclaimed 20 years ago, against other nations, but for better disposition of the immediate conditions of peace to put an end to a state of anarchy which gives rise to conflicts by maintaining distress."

Pledge All-Out Effort

Opening the conference in the foreign ministry's gilded grand dining hall, Bidault said Britain and France would spare no effort to make the meeting a success.

The conference started at 11:00 a. m. (5:05 a. m., eastern standard time). France was seated at the head of the conference table.

"I am authorized to state for the British government," Bevin said, "that not only the resources of Britain but, insofar as we can influence it, the resources of the entire British commonwealth of nations will be thrown into the support of this effort."

He stressed that the conference was economic and not political.

"I emphasize again," he declared, "that this is a voluntary arrangement. We are attempting to organize the economic resources of the continent for the benefit of all Europe. * * *"

Bidault said the primary objective of the meeting would be to form an organization to determine Europe's resources and needs as a preliminary to requesting United States financial assistance. Secretary of State George C. Marshall, in a Harvard university speech, urged U. S. support of a European recovery program.

JONES CONFIRMED IN COMMUNICATION JOB

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 12—Rep. Robert F. Jones (R-Ohio) yesterday was confirmed by the senate as a member of the federal communications commission.

Only brief discussion preceded the confirmation. Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) used some of that time to remind the senate that columnist Drew Pearson had charged Jones had been a member of the Black Legion during testimony before the interstate commerce subcommittee.

Pepper said, however, that he was glad to hear that the committee had given the Lima, O., congressman a clear bill despite the charges. Jones twice denied the Pearson charges before his confirmation.

EDWIN D. YOUNG "MAN WE'RE AFTER," SHERIFF REPORTS

By W. T. BUCHANAN

SALLOW-FACED Edwin DeMoines Young, 39-year-old stone truck driver, was the object of a statewide search today in the brutal churchyard slaying of Mrs. Zora Gerbes 25, early Friday morning.

A warrant charging Young with first degree murder was filed in municipal court at 11:45 a. m. today by Prosecuting Attorney James E. Reed. The warrant was based on an affidavit signed by Sheriff LeRoy Retterer.

"He's the man we are after," the sheriff said. "We are not going to run down any more clues until we find him," he added.

How Finger Points at Young

In the investigation that led to the naming of Young in the warrant officers learned that:

Young worked for a Marion trucking concern, he has a wife and child living in a trailer on Midlam avenue, that the license, Q-4846, seen on the death car was issued to him and that he is the owner of the car bearing the license.

With the identity of the hunted man determined Sheriff Retterer and other investigating officers were waiting today for developments from any section of the state. The sheriff said the search would be extended to other states if no trace is found of Young or the car within a short time.

In the meantime plans are going ahead for funeral services for Mrs. Gerbes who was found dead of strangulation and trussed up with a clothesline in the St. Paul Lutheran churchyard on route 98 at 2:35 a. m. yesterday.

Clothesline Sought

An object of search by the sheriff today is a clothesline, from which the slayer may have cut the cord he used to strangle and tie up his victim. Retterer said one end of the line had been freshly cut. He is attempting to locate the remainder of the cotton rope. He advanced the idea it might have been cut from a line in someone's back yard.

Other Trails Abandoned

Investigation yesterday and until late last night definitely determined, the sheriff said, "that Young is the man we are after. Until we find him we are not even going to run down any more leads as we did yesterday."

Investigation yesterday took the officers to Richwood, Somerville, both in Union county, West Mansfield and Bellefontaine in Logan county and Oreola in Crawford county.

The sheriff based his decision to seek only Young on the following developments:

▶Pictures of Young obtained from his wife have been identified by the Yeager boys as that of the man they saw at the churchyard.

▶The death car seen at the church bearing license No. Q-4846 has been identified as the machine owned by Young.

▶Young did not return to his Midlam avenue trailer home the night of the murder or last night.

▶The name E. D. Young, to whom the car license was issued, has been found to be, bona fide and not fictitious as thought yesterday.

The sheriff's belief up until late yesterday afternoon that the auto license had been obtained under an assumed name resulted from the fact Young was known only to a limited number of people here. The address, Marion rural route 1, was unknown to mail carriers out of the Marion postoffice.

Investigators' attention was directed toward Young yesterday after it was learned he was a truck driver for the Hall Trucking Co. with headquarters near Garfield park. The company hauls agricultural lime and limestone.

Clothing Purchase Is Clue

Inability to pay for a suit of clothes purchased at a Marion clothing store placed Young directly in the center of the search for Mrs. Gerbes' slayer.

He had written a letter to the store from which the suit was purchased, explaining he was unable to pay and asking for instructions as to what to do about it. The store manager wrote back, telling him to return the suit.

Young followed instructions, sending the suit from Oreola. Then investigators came to the conclusion investigators, sheriff's deputies went to Oreola to check on him. It was there they learned he had worked for the Hall firm.

This letter was addressed to a Marion grocery store proprietor, excusing himself for not paying his bill but promising to make weekly payments until the account was taken care of.

Wife, Son Visited

Last night about 9 o'clock Prosecutor Reed and sheriff's deputies called at the Midlam avenue trailer home and found Young's 40-year-old crippled wife and his four-year-old son. Mrs. Young, the investigators said, is afflicted with a club foot and is confined to a wheel chair.

When the officers began to question Mrs. Young about her husband she sensed something was wrong, since Young had not been home the previous night.

She was quoted as saying, "There's something wrong, isn't there? I want to know what it is."

Prosecutor Reed asked her if she had read the papers and she said she had not. The prosecutor said he explained his mission. Mrs. Young began to cry.

Later she told the investigators her husband had not been home the previous night. She had last seen him, she said, Thursday afternoon when he returned with a sack of groceries. She identified the car and license number as Young's.

She also told the officers her husband spent a good deal of time in beer parlors. The officers obtained two snapshots of Young taken in a five-and-ten cent store. These were the pictures later identified at the sheriff's office by the Yeagers.

In one picture Young was wearing a cap and in the other he was bareheaded. The Yeagers saw the pictures about 11 p. m. Henry, the older brother, first saw the one with the cap. "That certainly looks like the man," he said. Then both Henry and Charles were shown the photo in which Young was bareheaded.

"That's the man!" both said at once. The man suggested by the Yeagers as the slaying was bareheaded.

Young's police record shows he has a heavy beard, dark brown, bushy hair. The Yeagers said the hair of the man they saw was trimmed and [illegible]

Second Stanza Same As First As Senate Again Talks Tax Cut

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 12—The second act of a curious, dream-like performance is being unreeled today in the senate. Makes the customers feel like they've dropped in on the middle of a movie they've already seen.

The lawmakers are getting ready to pass a tax cut bill again, so President Truman can veto it again, so . . .

But you get the idea. The oratory is spinning like an aerial saucer. So are the heads in the press gallery. Because how can a reporter get excited writing about a speech when he's already written about it? A couple or months ago.

So all right. The pages in the knee-breeches carefully placed on each senatorial desk a copy of house bill No. 3950. This figure indicated that the representatives had introduced 3,949 laws on all subjects since they'd first taken up the celebrated HR 1 which already would have chopped 20 per cent off President Truman hadn't squelched it.

Duplicates No. 1

Bill No. 3950 was an exact duplicate of No. 1, except that it didn't call for lower taxes until next year. It even included 16 pages of tax-collector gobbledegook ending with the following magnificent sentence.

"In the case of a taxable year of an individual beginning in 1947 and ending in 1948 the tax imposed by sections 11, 12 and 400 shall be an amount equal to the sum of that portion of a tentative tax computed as if the law applicable to taxable years beginning on Jan. 1, 1947 were applicable to such taxable year prior to Jan. 1, 1948, bears to the total number of days in such taxable year (gentle reader, you ain't heard nothing yet) plus that portion of a tentative tax computed as if the law applicable to such taxable years beginning on Jan. 1, 1948 were applicable to such taxable year, which the number of days in such taxable year after Dec. 31, 1947 bears to the total number of days in such taxable year."

I waited and I waited, but none of the orators explained that one. For a while, in fact, the senate (cross my heart) was speechless. Sen. Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado said he'd be delighted to yield some time to Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas.

Quiet Relcus

The latter said he certainly was grateful, but he wanted to speak later. Sen. Millikin said yes, but he didn't have anybody else to speak. This produced a historic moment: dead silence in the senate chamber. Then Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and others scurried down the aisles, whispering, and Sen. Fulbright relented. The senate, after all, could not be quiet for want of speechmakers.

The gentleman from Arkansas told at length why he was against the bill. Sen. A. Willis Robertson of Virginia explained at still greater length why he was against it, but intended to vote for it. So I went out to lunch. The 65 cent senatorial special (crab meat salad and peppermint ice cream) was excellent.

Sen. Robertson still was talking when I meandered back. He said he didn't suppose we ever would have a really first class tax law until there is peace all over the world and we can go to bed at night without worrying about an atom bomb dropping on us while we sleep.

Later today, maybe, the senators will vote again on tax cuts. President Truman is putting a new nib again on his veto pen and this, I think, is where I came in.

Plans Completed For Merkle Funeral

The funeral services are set for Monday at 9 a. m. in Sts. Peter and Paul Catholic church in Sandusky.

To Study Corn Yield in County

Test of Row vs. Contour Planting Scheduled Near Prospect.

A study to determine corn yields in row vs. contour cultivation on the heavier sub-soil types typical of Marion county farmland will be made on the Ray Hedges farm near Prospect, it was announced following a meeting Thrusday night of the Marion county soil conservation district board of supervisors at the district office in the postoffice building.

The field trial will be made in cooperation with the Ohio agricultural experiment station at Wooster, the Ohio extension service, and the U. S. soil conservation service.

Monday, Aug. 4 was set as the date for a tour of the Wooster station, open to all residents of Marion county. The tour will be sponsored by the Marion district, in cooperation with the extension service. Details of the tour were discussed with the board of Arthur H. Smith, Marion county agricultural agent.

The tour will be conducted by Earl Jones of Columbus, extension specialist in agronomy, and will pertain to soils and agronomy. The tour party will assemble at 10 a. m. in the grove east of the main buildings at the Experiment station, which is located on the east side of Route 250, one and a half miles south of Wooster.

The board approved a preliminary report on the Haines ditch drainage problem in Claridon township. The report, prepared by George L. Sherman of Mt. Gilead, U. S. soil conservation service agricultural engineer, was made at the request of a group of residents of the area.

Mr. Sherman met in the district office last night with a group of Pleasant township land owners who have formed a mutual association for the purpose of installing a tile drainage system on the Augenstein ditch. The improvement involves five tarms in the area and will affect approximately 98 acres of farm land.

The board voted a contribution to the national organization of district supervisors.

"And the Towns Went By Like Railway Cars"

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Writer

N. R. K., July 12 — The ... strange towns went ... cars . . . . remembers them now . . . Ragusa . . . Licata . . . Nisceni . . . Soft musical names ... the soft Sicilian syllables ... always end on a half- ... the ... a ... collected ... heart- ... their ... history. ... years ... names ... improv- ... the pin- ... the ... faces of ... in infan- ... in tank ... moving ... the dry ... Sicily.

Hal Boyle

... meant populated places ... with and comedy held ... rendezvous. ... never was a military ... quite like Sicily in its ... days. The troops were ... whether they would ... ers or a hand grenade ... . . . And they some- ... both in the same town. ... knew whether the ... soldier would meet ... a bottle of "vino" or ... gun blast.

It was a strange war even for Sicily, overrun by the forces of practically every empire since Crete, and a football through time for every Mediterranean power.

The Italian army was dissolving into happy, drunken, dirty fragments, washing apart like a sand castle in a heavy tide. But the German army was coiled like an iron spring, tempered and ready.

We came ashore at Scrabbly Gela, sunbaked and unwashed since the Greek dramatist Aeschylus died there in 456 B. C. The German tanks rolled in waves against the slender beachhead, and when they recoiled, beaten, more bloody dead lay there than at any time since Agathocoles treacherously put 5,000 inhabitants to the sword three centuries before Christ was born.

And then the towns began going by like railway cars . . . Naro . . . Favara . . . Caltanisetta . . . Marsala . . . Trapani . . . and Castelvetrano, where broken plane doors flapped in a windy graveyard of Axis airpower.

Tomatoes For Water

The tomatoes, plump and sweet in the fields, took the place of water. The Italian prisoners poured in by tens of thousands, and there were souvenir flags and pistols and Fascist banners for everyone. It was a new Roman holiday—with ice cream cones for sale on one corner, and German tank death waiting around the next.

But in the west the German tanks were few, and Patton and his pistols wheeled into beautiful Palermo, a spacious capital in ruins, in power and pomp.

Light Sicilian ladies with the kisses of their departing German sweethearts still damp on their lips turned willing mouths to new conquerors. Thus it has always been in Sicily.

The war swung east then against veteran Teuton troops dug into the seacoast and rugged mountain villages. The gaudy days were over. The artillery guns pounded all day, and lit the sky by night. The bulldozers took over and built new roads around the blownup bridges. Doughboys bled again on unnamed hills.

Go More Slowly

And the towns went by more slowly now, like a jerky freight train, and the cars were colored red . . . Troina, that hill of horror . . . 'Bloody Ridge," a crag populated only by American and German dead . . . San Stefano, with its creekbed so sown with chain mines that eight soldiers died when one man jostled a wagon . . . and Brolo, where our surprise landing broke the Nazi line.

Remember, soldier, the tossed flowers and hazel nuts and almonds? The watermelons and the wine? And Mt Etna, smouldering on the right? Lying in a foxhole at night you could see it wore a halo, and wondered when you'd get yours.

Randazzo . . . Milazzo . . . Spadafora . . . and Messina . . . the end of the Sicilian campaign, with the Germans still firing from Italy across the straits.

The towns went by like railway cars . . . and who remembers them now?

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M.D.

Arthritis

The word "arthritis" simply means inflammation of the joints Medically, however, arthritis is much more complicated than this simple definition would indicate.

In the first place, there are many kinds of arthritis. It may, for instance, be produced by all sorts of different germs. The tuberculosis germ for one; the pneumococcus germ for another.

In the great majority of cases, however, we cannot find the culprit in any of the known disease-causing organisms. When this is true we classify the disease in other ways, because, until we know the type of arthritis present, proper treatment cannot be given.

In the group of cases in which the cause for the condition is not known, we have what is called rheumatoid arthritis, in which the joints are swollen and painful and which results in deformities. Young adults and middle-aged people are subject to this type. Older people usually have osteo-arthritis, in which there is an overgrowth of joint tissue.

Many persons suffer from a related condition known as fibrositis which is an inflammation of the supporting tissues around the joint. Others, according to Drs. Philip S. Hench of the Mayo Clinic, and Edward W. Boland of the University of California, may have what is called psychogenic, or "mentally produced" rheumatism. This disorder seems to occur in people who are poorly adjusted, that is, who suffer emotional disturbances. They, as a rule, do not have any objective signs of disease but may go about with the back bent or walk peculiarly or with the joints in some abnormal position.

It may be difficult at times to tell fibrositis from psycogenic rheumatism.

However, in fibrositis the joints are stiff and painful, while in psychogenic rheumatism the pains are not confined to any definite location.

In fibrositis, there are aches, soreness, stiffness and fatigue, while in psychogenic rheumatism the patient may complain of burning, weakness and tingling.

In fibrositis, the symptoms are worse in the morning and late afternoon. In psychogenic rheumatism, the symptoms are, as a rule, continuous.

The patient with psychogenic rheumatism is better after rest and worse after exercise. The patient also often seems to become worse after treatment is made. He is, as a rule, not relieved by such pain-depressing medicines as aspirin.

It can be seen that unless these various conditions are definitely diagnosed before treatment is started, good results cannot be obtained since the treatment will vary to a great extent in the different disorders.

In Memory
*Of our wife and mother, Mrs. George Walters, who passed away a year ago today, June 12, 1946.
Dearest mother, how we miss you,
No one knows the pain you bore,
But we know that you have left us
To return, no, never more.
No more upon this earth we'll see
Your sweet and smiling face,
There is no one in this world
Who an ever take your place.
Now we must journey on without you,
Though the day be long and sad,
Ever looking unto Jesus,
The best friend we ever had.
God takes our loved ones from our homes, one by one,
But never from our hearts which have been broken.
Which will never heal until we meet again;
It is hard for us to say goodbye,
But we all must part.
Rest, dear mother, your work is done,
And when the day of life is fled,
May we all meet up in heaven
Where no farewell tears are shed.
Sadly missed by husband and children—George Walters and Family.

GALION CITY COUNCIL OPENS POWER ACTION

2 Emergency Ordinances Get First Reading at Meeting.

Special to The Star

GALION, July 12—Two emergency ordinances, one which would advertise for bids to enter into a contract for electric energy to supplement the supply generated by the Galion Municipal Light and Power Co. for its own use and for resale to its own consumers, and another to advertise for bids for the construction of a substation, were given first readings at a special session of city council Friday night, and referred to the light committee of council for study.

Approximately 100 citizens, manufacturers, utility company representatives, attorneys and other citizens were in attendance at the special session.

The power situation reached a climax, here, when 50 per cent power output forced manufacturing plants to close down and idled more than 1,500 workers during the past week. The previous week some 2,500 workers had vacationed along with a pre-arranged plan between the city officials and manufacturers to shut down while improvements and repairs were being made at the plant. During the past week, council and the board of control were petitioned by civic organizations to meet the emergency by assuring adequate and continuous power for manufacturing purposes. This led to the writing of the ordinances.

An announcement late Friday by Joseph Brost, superintendent of the Galion electric light plant, said that full power at the plant would be going by 4 p. m. today, and employes of industrial concerns have been called back to work Monday morning.

Eighty per cent of all human activities are guided by the eyes.

Trend of the Family

There's Pop — and Mom — and the kids — somehow all of them have to get together on which car it will be for the family.

Well, if you go by the pollsters, there's no problem.

One poll asked the youngsters who are old enough to have fixed opinions which car they preferred.

It was Buick — head and shoulders.

Another went to the ladies, guardians of the family pocketbook.

And running way ahead of other cars at its price — staging a nip-and-tuck battle for second with one of the "lowest-priced three" — was this Buick beauty, trim and fresh and gay as a Paris bonnet, new as tomorrow in looks and line.

As for the men —

Is a poll necessary to show how men go for the lift and swing of eight great Fireball cylinders?

Do you have to ask to find out that they prefer a car big and steady and sure-footed as any road on this Buick is?

Is there any man who wouldn't rather have the soundness of Buick gentle coil springing, the quick, sure command action of this car you former to his trouble-foot, the sense of perfect mastery of two generous tons that are ever "obediently yours"?

The answer's written on the order books of Buick dealers from coast to coast: This is America's most wanted automobile.

This is the one the whole family goes for — on style, on size, on room, on power, on performance — so why not join the trend?

We'll take your order any time you say — and give it equal consideration whether or not you have a car to trade.

Place Your Bets

RUSSIAN diplomacy and infiltration will claim no greater victory that crystallization of an anti-western bloc over the issue of European rehabilitation under the Marshall plan. This should be the Kremlin's all-time high-water mark. It has persuaded seven of its satellite powers to shoot Santa Claus.

It would be silly to underestimate Russia's accomplishment. But it is sillier for Americans to underestimate the Marshall plan. The plan is proof that this country still is making the constructive approach to human problems. Its blueprint for rehabilitation of Europe is the only one that offers a better way of living, instead of bondage for an uncertain dole of bread.

The only civilization able to back up men's aspirations for enough to eat is the United States. The only society able to help humanity exists in America. These facts are known in Europe, even behind the iron curtain. They are known among the peoples of the new anti-western bloc forged on the anvil of Kremlin power politics.

The Christian approach to humanity's problems always has been superficially weak. But at the same time it has been the thing most feared by all dictators and despots for nearly 2,000 years. They realize its ultimate power. That is why the Kremlin feels it must hurry, to accomplish quickly by intimidation what it never can accomplish by persuasion. Its approach to human problems is negative. It has nothing to offer for the long pull. The odds favor the United States, if there must be a showdown, because human beings ultimately will decide—not governments—and a police state has nothing to offer.

Rationing Again?

WILL the Marshall plan, plus floods, plus poor growing seasons for some crops, force a return of rationing for Americans? Government officials aren't saying but dispatches indicate they are giving the matter serious thought. Decision will have to await details of Europe's needs and more complete crop reports.

If it is decided that America's food consumption must be regulated to assist Europe, the administration would do well to work out a compulsory system first without attempting any voluntary program. Just as moral suasion didn't work on voluntary price reductions, it won't work where food's concerned. When people have the money to buy, a moral suasion campaign to cut food purchases probably would have the opposite effect, human nature being what it is.

Summer Days

NOW is the time when the frost is on the lemonade beaker, and Sirius, the Dog Star, begins its summer ascent.

The Fourth of July is past, Labor day is a mere speck on the horizon. The lawn chairs justify the money spent on them and the lawn maples are paying off their investment with ample dividends of shade. The back-yard gardener rubs a pinch of soil between his fingers and finds that it is good. The first tomatoes, he notes, are beginning to blush and the grape arbor gives promise of a good yield seven or eight weeks hence. From his sock-like nest in a nearby oak, the oriole trills a free fantasia.

It's a season of ripening, of the first bloom of maturity. The yellows and the browning greens of September aren't yet in evidence. The sun's rays are hot and direct, not the pale, oblique shafts of spring or autumn. All growing things receive them gratefully. So summer's benison settles upon mountain, upon valley, upon plain, and upon John Q. Citizen's quarter-acre, complete with mortgage.

Same Old Tune

THE state department is unwilling to embargo Russian oil shipments for fear of precipitating a diplomatic break. And anyway, it's just a trickle of oil, a mere fraction of a day's production per year at the present rate.

This is the policy we followed while shipping scrap metal to Japan. It was better to conunue shipments, policy makers decided, than to risk severance of relations. So the Japanese severed relations in their own good time and in their own memorable manner. We had supplied them with material and got nothing in return except the same material forged into bullets.

What we would lose in a diplomatic break with Russia is trifling. We don't need Russia's gold: our few gourmets can struggle along without her caviar.

The state department is playing the same old appeasement tune of the 1930's and it's one of those tunes that doesn't wear well.

Did You Know?

The road that runs around the Gulf of Mexico from Florida to Louisiana is known as the Old Spanish Trail.

The resort city of Atlantic City, N. J., has about 27,000 hotel rooms besides other thousands of rooms in "tourist homes."

John Lewis vs. The Atom

By RAYMOND MOLEY

Inflation Threat Seen in Coal Wage Pact.

IN MORE ways than one, there seems to be a race between John Lewis and atomic power. Civilization, it is truly said, depends on our ability to find the way to peace before the atomic bomb becomes common property.

Civilization as we have known it depends also on the ability of the United States to keep its economy stable and productive. For a crash, induced by an excess of inflation followed by deflation, is exactly what the men in the Kremlin are eagerly anticipating. And the recent deal between Lewis and the operators is the greatest inflationary step since the end of the war.

The atom figures in another aspect of the Lewis contract. Unless atomic power provides us with a practical substitute for coal, we shall be squeezed again and again in the nutcracker provided by Lewis and the operators. An expanding economy uses more and more energy. As things stand, coal is our chief reserve of that energy, for our coal reserves, we are told, are much more plentiful than those of oil. Pending the development of atomic energy for peacetime purposes, we become more and more dependent on the power that controls coal production—which, in a practical sense, is Lewis and his organization.

It is hardly necessary to spell out the consequences of the Lewis victory. The 45 cents' pay increase alone exceeds even the most extravagant claims of labor economists and leaders a year ago. The Nathan report, it will be remembered, claimed a maximum increase of 24 cents an hour.

The effect of this increase on the nation's coal bill has been variously estimated. The best figure, I believe, is that the consumer will pay an additional $400,000,000 for the same amount of coal. The pay roll of the bituminous coal industry in 1946 was $1,000,000,000.

The chain reaction on prices will be tremendous. Steel, electric power, railway transportation—all will rise. Then almost everything else will rise.

But the chain reaction on labor generally will be more notable. Labor leaders and economists who have been hedging in their demands of late and cautiously bargaining for long-term contracts have been thrown into confusion. Lewis has again proved that in audacity, skill and ruthlessness he is their master. And so every union leader will be under fire from his rank and file. Dues-paying workers everywhere will say that if the miners can get more, so should they.

End Not in Sight

The miners have been getting more all along. According to the U. S. bureau of labor statistics, the weekly earnings in that industry were $69.58, the highest in a long list of industries, including steel and automobiles. The new settlement makes the disparity still greater. Demands will stiffen, despite the Taft Act and anything else the government can do.

Basic speculation on the coal agreement will bring out very large implications. What can be the end if weary employers decide to pass along such increases? In republican Germany at the outset of the great inflation, the industrialist, Stinnes, whose operations entered vast segments of the economy, not only met demands for higher wages, but encouraged such demands. After that, the deluge.

The hard fact must be faced that free enterprise can destroy itself in a cycle of inflation. Pressure for government control can become overwhelming and as we know, a little control can grow into complete control.

Danger of Subsidies

Suppose, for example, the government should take over the coal industry and by means of subsidies pay the high wages and keep down the price of coal. This might be tolerable if limited to coal. But how long would it be so limited? Workers in other industries would view their opulent and protected brethren in the coal mines with keen envy. How long before demagogues seeking office would turn that envy into votes? Unionism, competition and capitalism could hardly survive such an onslaught.

Perhaps atomic power can break the hold that Lewis and the operators have fashioned. There seems to be no other answer to their challenge.

It is revealed that John Nance Garner has destroyed his files and will not write any memoirs.

That cinches his reputation as a rugged individualist.

Before the citizenry turned out en masse to look for saucers in the sky, memoir writing was well on the way to becoming the great American pastime.

Nowadays, public officials write their revelations before they do their resignations. And a self-respecting magazine would no more think of coming out without a now-it-can-be-told installment than would Menjou without his spats.

Yes sir, memoir writing is one of the easier forms of literary effort, requiring less research than biography and, in some instances, less imagination than fiction.

Moreover, making private papers public is highly lucrative, journeyman memoir writers being paid more per word than stone cutters.

Thus Garner, who is remembered principally as the Roosevelt vice president who was neither mystic nor musical, could have found a ready market for his memoirs . . . even though, as in Farley's case, they had been nothing more than a belated admission that he still doesn't know what was going on.

The Country Boarders

By FRANK TRIPP

FROM reading the ads for vacationers one can whip up a lusty wanderlust. He also can stir up memories of some rare experiences while in search of relaxation and sunburn.

Who hasn't gone somewhere on a hunch or on somebody's say-so and wished himself back to good old Bway & 42nd, or whatever the four-corners is called in your town? It used to happen often to city folks who got an idea that they could go country in one lesson.

It's more modern now, but recouping in the country once amounted to buying into the biography of Daniel Boone. You've got to get way back into the sticks today to escape the fashions and conveniences which are supposed to be no part of a real rural holiday.

When the country hired girl gets dolled up she's a wow. After taking the dishes out of an electric dish washer and putting the left-over ice cream in the deep freeze, she looks like she stepped out of a Fifth Avenue salon.

Up in your room, the wash bowl and pitcher are gone. So is the commode which had a very useful one-handled piece of nocturnal crockery. In its place is a shiny lavatory. The scenery from the back stoop has changed too. Where the Chic Sale stood there's a septic tank—and the Sears Roebuck catalogue now is part of the front porch library. Its frayed pages bespeak a readership which beats that of Esquire or the New Yorker.

You yawn, join the rocking chair fleet, and lament how convenient and boring everything is. No Indians in the bushes, no yokels riding up on mules, no chickens on the porch or pigs in the front yard. In fact very little to complain about. And that's what you went there for—that and to tell the rubes how excitingly you live back home.

Well, Mrs. S., there ain't no rubes any more—unless it's those who go looking for them.

Though he now operates nearer like Mr. Statler, the old-homestead boniface however is still true to form. If you're a repeat guest, you'll knowingly remark, "Uncle Henry hasn't changed a bit; still the same dear old simpleton."

Truth is Uncle Henry is simple—like a fox. He knows more about customer golf than all the vice presidents in the land. He knows that he's got to let you startle him pink with your tall yarns about life in a great city. And he'll patiently bide his time with just now and then a "my, my," or "mercy me."—until it's his turn.

His inning will be ingeniously maneuvered to come just as you are standing in front of a gate leg table or a chest of drawers. He'll be sort of stroking it or wiping it affectionately with his handkerchief—and be talking about something else.

Uncle Henry remembers that last year you toted home a hundred-year-old firewood box that he just got finished the week before you came.

To see how the land lies—if it lies as well as he does—he has asked about the box and told how Aunt Susan scolded him like sixty for selling it.

That's when you remark, "What a beautiful chest."

"Yes 'tis," says Uncle Henry, "but you can't talk me out o' that. It come from the old Humphrey place. Must be a 150 to 200 years old." Then he hustles off.

The next ten days develop into a contest between you and Mrs. Depuyster Girard Anstruther to see who buys the chest. You never liked her anyway and you've made up your mind she won't get the antique. Uncle Henry stays neutral.

You win out. But not until you and the Anstruther woman have bid the chest up to where Uncle Henry could induce Aunt Susan to let him sell it.

Poor Aunt Susan is heartbroken and you feel guilty about it. You like Aunt Susan and you comfort her by saying that somewhere she can find another.

Which is just as true as your name is Mrs. Sucker.

One will come in the day after you leave.

SHADY PROTECTION

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Monday, July 12, 1937.

Glenn Ray, federal crop statistician, estimated Ohio's wheat crop at a probable 49,794,000 bushels, nearly 10,000,000 bushels higher than 1936 and 60 per cent greater than the 10-year average.

Galion, Crestline and other points in Ohio were swept by electrical and wind storms which brought respite from soaring temperatures but caused considerable damage.

Marvin A. Sanders, 68, of near Richwood, died at his home.

C. R. Banfill was installed as noble grand at a meeting of Kosciusko Lodge No. 58, I.O.O.F.

Bill Moose, last surviving member of the once numerous Wyandotte Indian tribe of central Ohio, died in the Franklin county home. He would have been 100 years old in two months.

Mrs. Anna White of South Grand avenue left on a four weeks' visit in Toledo and points along Lake Erie.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, July 12, 1927.

County Auditor Earl E. Thomas filed an annual report listing $3,822 paid during the preceding year on claims for sheep killed or maimed by dogs. This was an increase of $454 over the year before.

Mrs. Harriet J. Burch, 72, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Bricker, on Senate street.

Robert G. McMurray and Robert F. Hecker and Russell W. Gardner of Marengo were among 208 Ohio men and women announced as having made passing grades in the Ohio State medical examination.

Mr. and Mrs. William Belser of Pennsylvania avenue entertained a company of friends in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Sonday of Bucyrus, recently married. Mrs. Sonday was formerly Miss Kathryn Belser.

Daily Bible Thought

But first we must do our duty here, and meet and solve the problems set us. Our pilgrimage may well be difficult, but that is the way we become worthy of a better home: "Let me go over I pray thee and see the good land that is beyond the Jordan."—Deut. 3.25.

The Lesson of the Disks

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON, July 12—The flying saucers have served at least to pound one lesson home. That is that the United States has developed no effective warning system against surprise attack in this age of the new and terrible weapons. For if such a system had been in existence, the military authorities could instantly have ended speculation. They could have given those assurances which an effective warning system would instantly provide: "We know all that passes through the American air. You saw sunlight on the wings of high-flying aircraft—or you saw nothing—or you saw a meteor in the night sky." No such assurances were forthcoming. We do not have an effective warning system. We are not prepared for the worst.

Adequate defensive preparation for an all too possible worst will mean, in the opinions of those charged with planning for national security in this era of the atom bomb and the guided missile, two things. First, it will mean a radar umbrella extending over the whole continental United States, to give instant warning of any object which passed through the air over America. The incidental benefits of such an umbrella will be considerable; for example, it will undoubtedly serve to decrease air accidents. But its real purpose will be to flash in a moment to all defense headquarters news of the direction and weight of any enemy attack.

Cost Will Be High

Such a system will be expensive. But the second prerequisite of an effective warning system will be more so. For advance warning bases, pushed out beyond the borders of the country, will also be necessary, to provide those extra minutes or seconds for the launching of the American defensive counter-attack. To meet this dire necessity, very little has been done. The chain of joint American-Canadian warning stations and air bases projected along the Arctic frontier is still in the dream stage. One such base, at Churchill, on Hudson's Bay, does exist, for preliminary testing purposes. But its value even as a test base is doubtful. For it is the northern terminus of Canadian railroad, whereas Arctic bases, on the other must of necessity be so pla that the technicians who m them will be able to support lif in sub-zero isolation for long periods at a time, and so that these men can be supplied not only with the means of life, but with the necessary equipment, when and where needed.

Moreover, such bases, each in itself a major project, must be spaced at 200-mile intervals across the Arctic frontier. For the outer limit of radar range is 100 miles, and any gap might render the whole system valueless. Present estimates indicate that such an advance warning system will require an initial investment of at least a billion and a quarter dollars.

Course Is Clear

Yet unless the nightmare of surprise attack conjured up by the flying saucer scare is to become hard reality, or unless a really secure world settlement is unexpectedly achieved, the money must be spent. The reason is simple. Very long-range supersonic aircraft and guided missiles have yet to be built, either by ourselves, by the Russians or by any one else. Yet such weapons are universally acknowledged to be possible, and therefore, unless there is a world settlement, certain to be built within a few years.

Moreover, intelligence reports indicate clearly that the Soviets are making an all-out attack, not only on the atomic problem, but on the whole vast mysterious area of the guided missile. In this total effort, the Soviets are being aided by no less than 7,000 hireling German scientists. Indeed, under Soviet supervision, the German scientists continued to manufacture the V-2s, the first successful supersonic missiles, in the eastern zone of Germany for some time after the war. One achievement of this continued experimentation was the A-9 rocket, designed first at Peenemunde during the furor in Sweden some months ago.

The chief characteristics of the A-9 rocket is that it is equipped, not with fins, like the V-2, but with wings. Thus, whereas the V-2 descended almost straight down, at enormous speed, the A-9's wings ease it into a long glide when it reaches the denser atmosphere near the earth. Thus the range is extended by more than 300 miles. Moreover, slowed by its wings, it becomes fleetingly visible at the correct angle of vision.

The rockets were timed to disintegrate in the air before contact, but small parts of the weapon were discovered on the Swedish ground. And it is established beyond doubt that this achievement of the German-Soviet collaboration was responsible for the Swedish mystery.

Funds Needed

The A-9 is one measure of Soviet success in their all-out effort. Yet not only has lack of funds prevented even the first steps toward an adequate American defensive warning system from being taken, but the American guided missiles program, which would provide the necessary counter-attack, is also limping. Plans for a great supersonic wind tunnel, the real essential for the program, are still on the drawing board. And the tunnel, if it is ever to be built, will cost upwards of two billion dollars, this when the congress is intent on tax cuts and economy. Yet surely it is increasingly clear that in the world of today there are things worse than heavy taxes.

Mayor By a Shutout

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"A Slave Laborer Is Heard From" Or "The Worm Turns"

This department has received a letter from a housewife saying it is about time she got some of the labor benefits, and demanding a little attention. "I am the most over-worked, overrushed, over-burdened, over-tired, over-expected worker in this country," she declares, and all this yelling about slave labor makes me sick.

The letter runs:

Dear Sir: If you are looking for somebody who really has an honest kick about working conditions I'm your gal. My feet are flat, my legs are gone, my back aches, I've got a splitting headache, dishwater hands, chapped elbows, housemaid's knee, cookstove fever, settup ague, grocery-list tremors, ironing-board jitters, and that isn't half of it.

"I'm on the run from the first blast of the alarm clock until the last quiz program. I get twenty minutes for lunch. All life is a whistle-call back to work. Saturdays and weekends are just as tough, and on holidays I play Hercules and Samson as doing female impersonator acts. Does any spokesman speak for me? Do you see any Congressman weeping?

Well, I'm revolting! I demand a new deal. I ask shorter hours, better recreation facilities, more money, six paid holidays a year and a fairer contract. And if I get 'em I'll eat your hat. Come to think of it, I guess I could refuse to do the dishes, sweep the house, make the beds, dust the furniture, look after the kids, let the cat in, air the dog, shop for the groceries, do the cooking and make a fourth at bridge right now on the ground that I have no contract, like John Lewis did. (Compared to a housewife, the coal miners have it soft. They just sweat deeper in the ground.)

"My husband says I am under a life contract. It was signed when I said "I do" back in a little chapel years ago. But there was nothing in it about being a galley slave, Army mule, scrubwoman and pack-horse. Call for Mr. Pacway-y-y-y! And did Bill Green, Phil Murray or Caesar Petrillo ever bake a pie, wash the diapers, beat a rug and polish the silver all in one day?

Give me justice or give me fewer dishes to wash! I demand fair play and fewer pots and pans! I want a life, liberty and less laundry work. If the American housewife is not exploited nobody is. Revolt! Onward in the cause of emancipated womanhood, more apprentice dishwashers, fewer cooked meals and more husbands, Senators and public leaders who really care!

"I am writing my Congressman. There is nothing in any labor bill that even refers to me by inuendo. You will have to excuse me now as the sink is full of dishes again.

A HOUSEWIFE.

P. S.—Don't tell me to hire a maid. I had one once. Every time I moved anything in the icebox she certified a jurisdictional dispute.

Someone Said It

By TRUMAN TWILL

Reading is what literate citizens of the United States must do to prove they are better than the illiterate citizens.

The latter, being unable to read, never will find out who committed the murder in the magazine serial and why they should not change horses while crossing political streams. They will never know that a murder was committed or that politicians have been taking them for a ride.

They have no opportunity to bemuse themselves with comic books and light summer reading selling for $2.75 a copy and telling about the didoes and escapades of improbable people who shouldn't have acted that way in the first place.

These poor illiterates have never learned a lot of axioms about economics that had to be unlearned because they never were anything but nonsense. They have had to change to improve their minds with "Mein Kampf" or "Forever Amber."

They contribute absolutely nothing to the publishing business, which consists in tracking down sufficient literate fauna with the knack of putting words together in comprehensible order (though this is not imperative) to keep money coming in the front door faster than the published matter can be hauled away from the back door with the rest of the rubbish.

They are ignorant of the esoteric mouthings of purple creatures who would be jugged in the happy house for saying what they get paid money for writing so it can become a problem for the postoffice department and censors in Boston.

They cannot enlighten themselves with the Daily Worker, the Chicago Tribune, or the home-town dingbiatt; they can not read Adam Smith or Karl Marx; they know nothing better to do with pamphlets than light fires; they will never know what Blondie said to Dagwood when he fell face down on the floor.

They are denied the advantages that accrue to literate, such as knowing what to worry about in Indonesia and what Gromyko said to Wallace. They cannot know why reading maketh a full man, because they never have stuffed themselves with polysyllabic guff.

They cannot quote from anything, because they do not remember anything that's quotable; they must rely exclusively on what little sense they were endowed with, which isn't much but is all theirs.

They never worry because they can't catch up on their reading: they never entered a race that no one ever won anyway. They do not have to decide what to read next, because they are not going to read anything next; they are going to keep right on being what they are—poor, dumb illiterates who are a disgrace to civilization, according to what someone said sometime in a book.

EVERY LIFE OPERATES ON A SCHEDULE

The time of our arrival on earth can be closely predetermined but the moment for our departure remains unknown to us.

Sound thinking men know the cost of being "too late" in anything they undertake: They plan in advance to be on time, and included in their planning is a burial plot for their family.

The moderate cost and the convenience of payments offered by Marion Cemetery are surprising to men who have never taken time to investigate.

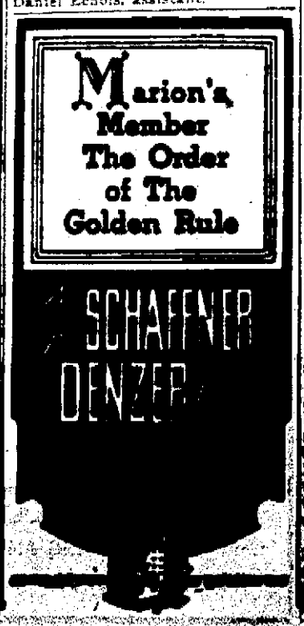
Greek Red Leader Calls For "Democratic" State

By The Associated Press

ATHENS, July 12 — Greece's fugitive Communist leader called today for the "creation in free Democratic areas in Greece of a free Democratic government."

Government troops continued a heavy drive against guerrillas in the northwest, where the war ministry said insurgents sought to set up a Communist state.

The war ministry said loyalist artillery units were pulverizing heavy concentrations of bandit guerrillas on Mount Grammos, near the Albanian border. Greek war ministry Spyros Spyrou said [illegible] ...per Rizospastis that the Communists had come to an open break with non-sympathetic political parties.



Seedtime and Harvest

A Sermonette
By REV. J. B. HOLLOWAY
Pastor of Trinity Baptist Church

Text: "In the morning sow thy seed and in the evening withhold not thine hand, for thou knowest not which shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good." Ecc. 11:6.

THE most popular topic of conversation today is not religion nor politics, not the latest fashions nor the atomic bomb, but always it is the weather. Was it not the great humorist, Mark Twain, who said "Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it." Present weather conditions, whatever they may be for the moment, cause the greatest amount of complaint. The good Lord has a hard time pleasing everybody. If it isn't too hot, it's too cold. If it isn't too dry, then it's too rainy. Few of us really appreciate the variations of the seasons and the consequent changes in the weather. Suppose we lived in the torrid zone where it is hot all the time and the only variation is from wet to dry, or in the frigid zone where they spend half the year in one long wintry night.

The Assurance of Seedtime and Harvest.

God was very gracious and kind to us when He provided for a succession of seasons. After the Flood He assured the patriarch, Noah, that "While the earth remains, seedtime and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, day and night shall not cease." Gen. 8:22.

From the beginning and on down through the intervening centuries these natural laws which were ordained by a beneficent Creator have been in operation and we have the assurance that they will continue without interruption to the end of time. The earth and the other Heavenly bodies move in their orbits in such orderly fashion according to the divine plan that the affairs of the world may be planned and carried forward with great accuracy. Acting upon this assurance that there will be rotation of seasons, seed-time and harvest-time, the farmers turn the sod and plow their fields in preparation for planting their crops and confidently look forward to a harvest by and by. The teeming millions in offices and factories in the great cities likewise plan their work and carry on from day to day trusting in a kind Providence to see that they are given their daily bread.

The Obligation to Sow and to Reap.

It would be sheer presumption and utter folly to assume that there would be a harvest unless there had first been a time of planting. We have an obligation to cooperate with our benevolent Father who controls the universe if we would benefit fully from His gracious provisions. He commands us: "In the morning sow thy seed and in the evening withhold not thine hand, for thou knowest not which shall prosper." Seedtime is the time of labor, not of repose; of self-denial, not of case; of hope, not of complacency. We must continue to sow the seed even though the harvest is remote and the prospects poor, for sowing is the evidence of faith and hope. If nothing is sowed, then nothing can be harvested. The farmer does not despair after much hard work in preparing the ground if not fruit is immediately in sight. He is content to toil on and wait patiently. After the seed has been finally planted in the ground, it must die and be lost from sight for many days before the new plant shoots up and begins to grow. If weather conditions prove to be unfavorable he adjusts his plans accordingly and may even change the kind of seed to be planted, but he knows that God will not fail to keep His promise and the harvest will assuredly follow seedtime as night follows the day.

This principle holds as true in the spiritual realm as in the physical. As we sow so shall we reap. Too often we scatter a few seed here and there and expect to reap an abundant harvest overnight. Paul warns us to "Be not weary in well doing for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." The minister, the Sunday school teacher, the parent may at times become discouraged when there may be no tangible evidence of fruit in the lives of young people after months or even years of diligent cultivation and sowing of precious seed. God has promised that "His Word shall not return unto Him void, but shall accomplish that which He pleases and shall prosper in the thing whereto He sends it." Isa. 55:11. There is abundant evidence that the good seed of the Gospel is taking root in the hearts of countless young people and older men and women although it may have been planted years ago, not alone in our own community and nation, but around the world.

Scarcely more than half a century ago it was that David Livingstone and Henry Stanley were pioneer missionaries among the head-hunting savages in the heart of Africa, but today civilization has come to that benighted land; cannibalism has disappeared and thousands of churches have replaced the cruel slave markets. All this because in the Providence of God the seed was planted in human hearts and now a glorious harvest is being reaped.

William Carey, the father of modern missions, worked long years at the cobbler's bench studying a map of the world and planting the seeds of missionary responsibility in the hearts of his fellow Christians before they too caught the vision and provided a way for him to go as their missionary to India. After reaching his post he labored in the face of overwhelming odds for seven years before he won his first convert, but today there are millions in the orient who have heard the "good news" and the fields are "white unto the harvest."

It may not be ours to reap the harvest of our own planting, for "one soweth and another reapeth." It may be ours to dream and to plan, to lay the foundation and sow the seed, but "we know our labor is not in vain in the Lord." It may be, too, that we, today are privileged to gather in a great harvest as the result of planting and cultivation by others who have gone before us. Jesus reminds us that "other men have labored and we have entered into their labors." Whether it is ours to sow or to reap we are co-laborers with our fellow-Christians of this and other generations gone by and with our Lord Jesus Christ in an effort to establish His Kingdom in the hearts and lives of all people at home and abroad.

Whether we till the soil and sow the seed that will feed hungry mouths at the harvest, or sow the seeds of truth in fertile minds in the school room or preach the gospel in heathen lands or share elsewhere in the work of the world according to the Divine plan, we are cooperating with the Almighty and shall receive in due time an appropriate reward for our labors, for "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

"Sow in the morn thy seed;
At eve hold out thy hand;
To doubt and fear give thou no heed;
Broadcast it o'er the land.

Thou canst not toil in vain;
Cold, heat, and moist and dry
Shall foster and mature the grain
For garners in the sky."

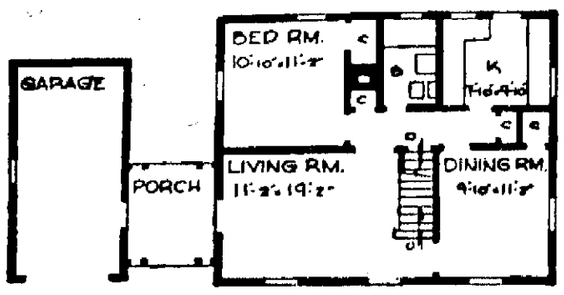
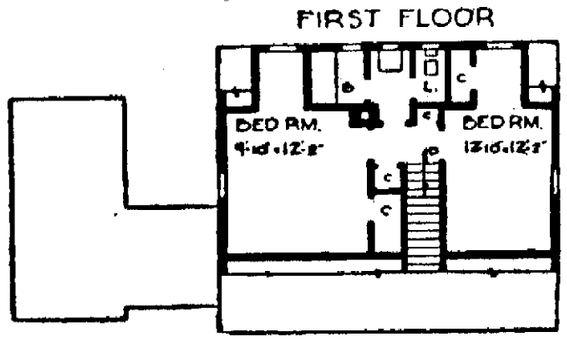
Here's House That Can Be Built in Three Stages Over Period of Years

YOUR HOME TODAY and TOMORROW

by W. Wadsworth Wood



FIRST FLOOR



SECOND FLOOR

The compact Dutch - Colonial house illustrated can be built in three stages, over any number of years, and still be authentic, good-looking and livable.

The original idea is to build the main house of one floor and a large attic. In this stage you have everything that is necessary for average living; a fine living-room, a bedroom, bathroom and kitchen. The stairway which will lead to the second floor can be omitted in the first building, and added after the attic is finished off.

When the second stage is undertaken, there will be two additional large bedrooms, a bathroom (directly above that on the first floor) a dressing-room, three-passenger bathroom, and ample closet space.

When the third stage of the building is called for, you will have a porch or breezeway, and a garage. Needless to say, the garage attic will provide additional storage space, or could actually be built up to include a maid's room and bath, with access from the main building by a narrow hall across the front of the left upstairs bedroom.

This one of the most flexible and comprehensive plans that have been developed, and the advantages of it are quite obvious. The average expandable house does not look too well in the initial stages, but this particular design looks well from beginning to end.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

Gas Conversion Burner

Q. I have a gas conversion burner in my furnace, and am not receiving any moisture in the heat. The water container is on the back of the furnace, about 18 inches from the bottom. With coal, the furnace gets warm enough at the bottom so as to cause evaporation. With gas it does not. Do you know of any other system that would correct this trouble?

A. With an automatic heating system, the humidifier pan should be installed at or near the top of the furnace, for that is the hottest spot. Your heating man could install a modern type of humidifier which automatically feeds water into the pan and has a higher rate of evaporation.

Varnish Peeling off Floor

Q. After varnishing our hardwood floors, the varnish is now peeling off. Apparently the floor wax wasn't completely removed before applying the varnish. Can you recommend something which we can use to take this last coat of varnish off without removing all the finish?

A. There is no way to take off one coat only; it should all be taken off. If you cannot get a floor contractor to do the work for you, I suggest that you rent an electric floor-sanding machine by the day and clean off all the defective coats of varnish and wax. Get a machine in good condition; otherwise, you may gouge the wood. A leaflet on hardwood floors is being sent to you.

Plaster Cracks

Q. The builder of my house, when building the chimney, tied the lathing directly to the flue, making the plaster tying the flue and wall as a unit. Now there is considerable cracking of plaster at the joint where ceiling and wall adjoin the flue. How may I rectify this condition?

A. The job requires the services of a plasterer. If you must do it yourself, cut away a six-inch wide strip of plaster from each side of the corner, running the full length. Then fasten a strip of corner lath in place and replaster the corner.

U. S. Publishes Booklet Holding Mirror To Fascism in Action

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, July 12—Very shortly the government will publish, for sale to the public, a booklet called "Fascism in Action."

This study in dictatorship—how it works and how it gets that way—was prepared by a special staff of the library of congress.

Rep. Wright Patman, Texas Democrat, asked that it be done. Before it could be printed for the public the house had to approve.

James Marlow

This it finally did after much delay and fiery debate because some congressmen said it was a waste of money.

The government printer will announce the price of it, which won't be much, when it's printed.

This writer has gone through original copies. It is worth the time of any one who wants to understand Fascism in action.

Ignores U. S. Symptoms

Patman wanted it made public as a companion piece to "Communism in Action," another booklet which the house ordered printed last year.

This, too, was prepared by the special congressional library staff. So far more than 400,000 copies of it have been sold.

Neither booklet deals with any evidences of Communism or Fascism which have appeared in this country.

One sticks to Communism in Russia. The other concentrates on Fascism in Germany, Japan, Italy and Spain.

The conclusion of the long study of Fascism, is, roughly, that Fascism means these things:

1. A dictator runs a Fascist government. He's supported by a single political party and a special class. The state, for its own so-called good, keeps every one under its thumb.

Freedom Doesn't Exist

2. Freedom, in the democratic sense understood in this country, does not exist. An individual's life means little. It's full of duties and obligations to the state.

3. Religion is attacked if it suggests obedience to any one else before the state, or if it emphasizes the importance and dignity of the individual.

4. An individual's lesiure time is carefully supervised because the state wants to control his waking thoughts and actions.

5. Education and thinking are controlled to make the masses think and do what the dictator wants.

Warlike Foreign Policy

6. Foreign policies are aggressive, or warlike. Fascism, looking for more living room for its people, seeks to build an empire.

7. To suit its own purposes, the dictatorship directs banking and private investment.

8. The dictatorship controls foreign trade of its people to suit its own ends.

9. Labor is so controlled that free collective bargaining and self-government by labor organizations are abolished. In short: Free unions are smashed.

10. Farming is developed intensively so the population can be fed with its own products. Which means: To be self-sufficient.

Transport for War

11. Transportation, besides carrying goods and passengers is built up to ease unemployment and as a preparation for war.

12. Fascism goes in for big arms programs. This tends to raise living standards. But no one knows how long that could last since no big Fascist state has lasted long enough to show it.

13. Big business and big industrialists are favored and strengthened. Enough private profit is permitted to let the special ruling class get rich.

Tariffs are raised. Huge sums are spent for military purposes. Not only is freedom of the individual disregarded, so are freedom in business dealings and investments, an freedom in changing jobs.

Truman Drops Slump Fears

Administration Now Worrying About Inflation as Higher Prices Loom.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 12—The administration today put aside fears of a mid-1947 business setback to study instead the question whether the nation's high-riding economy is headed for an inflationary crackup.

Instead of the mild "dip" which most government economists once predicted after July 1, many now forecast a new and higher plateau of prices in August and September.

Sixty million jobs yesterday became a reality instead of the title of a book by Henry A. Wallace. The census bureau reported that 60,055,000 civilians were working in June, an all time high for peace or war.

This "drove the last nail in the coffin" of the much discussed summer slump, some of the economists say. Actually, the working force exceeds Wallace's "full employment" goal, for he included men in military service. If these are added, today's total is 61,433,000.

The earnings and purchasing power of this army of jobholders is one of the economic forces which President Truman must consider in his special midyear report on the state of the economy. The message goes to congress next week.

The President's council of economic advisers, which yesterday gave Mr. Truman and the cabinet the facts, figures and forecasts on the problems of prosperity, is described reliably as worried lest the country is "relaxing its resistance to the inflationary mood."

At this moment, one official close to the council reported privately, the advisers feel it would be "unfortunate and unjustified" if sizeable price increases are slapped on steel and consumer goods made from steel as a result of the wage increase won by John L. Lewis' coal miners.

Neither should the coal settlement set off a general demand for another round of wage boosts, the council believes, because the miners' $1.20 daily wage increase is not much bigger than the 15-cent hourly pattern set in other industries in the spring.

File 1st Degree Murder Charge

His ears, larger than average, stand out from his head

Seek Death Details

From meager clues regarding the actual death struggle, officers today attempted to arrive at a conclusion as to the actual manner in which Mrs. Gerbes died

Officers believe that Mrs Gerbes and her companion had a quantity of beer in the car, the evidence of this being a beer bottle cap found at the death scene. Mrs. Gerbes was known to have frequented beer parlors regularly and was traced through several on North Main street and West Center street before she dropped from sight at 11 p m Thursday.

No trace of her could be found later than 11 p m when she was seen alone at the Black Forest grill on West Center street Where she went after that time and when she met the man at whose hands she died still is uncertain.

One report that came to the sheriff's office yesterday afternoon, however, might place the death car within a mile of the Lutheran churchyard about an hour before the body was found Herman Irey, who lives at the intersection of the Neidhart road with route 98, said an old car stopped in front of his residence about 1 15 a. m. Friday morning The car remained for about 10 minutes, he said, and he could hear a man and women quarreling. As the voices became louder he heard the woman shout, "You're a liar." At this point Irey raised the window blind When the light shown from the window the car was driven rapidly away to the north on route 98 in the direction of the church about a mile away The car approached route 98 from the Neldhart road.

If this couple could have been Mrs. Gerbes and her companion it is likely she met death within a half hour, since her body still was warm when Sheriff Retterer arrived at the churchyard at 2 35 a. m.

Probable Slaying Scene

The sheriff considered the possibility the car might have been parked elsewhere before arriving at the church, but he said he was inclined to believe the actual slaying was in the churchyard

Other officers also said they believed the clothesline used to strangle the victim was placed around her neck in the car After she was dead it is believed the slayer dumped her body no the church driveway, where he completed trussing her up.

Whether the slayer intended to place the body in the trunk of the car for final disposal at another place or whether he would have dumped the body over the fence where most of the woman's clothing was found, remained a matter of speculation.

In any event the officers believe the Yeager boys surprised the slayer before he had completed his gum task.

Tried To Enter Car

The Yeagers last night revealed a new angle on the strange actions of the slayer when they approached him at the churchyard They said that after they told him they were going to call the sheriff he offered to go along, actually trying to get in the car

When the boys first entered the church driveway the man, after being thwarted by headlights of the Yeager car in his attempt to hide, came up to the door of the machine and said, "There's my license number, what are you going to do about it?"

The boys, not realizing what had occurred, declined to take the man along When they returned from making a phone call to the sheriff he had driven away.

The officers believe that the killing, which apparently was committed in the heat of passion, and his subsequent discovery before his task was complete, so unnerved the man that he thought "the jig was up' and knew no other way out than to go with the Yeagers.

After the Yeagers drove away to telephone it is believed the man had time to partially collect himself. He took the obvious course and fled.

Uncertain Transportation

Officers also were wondering today how far Young could travel in a 11-year old automobile without being detected. So far there has been no report that either the car or Young has been seen since the search started early Friday morning when a warning was broadcast over police and state patrol radio systems to watch for the car.

Although the Young car is a 1933 model a Chevrolet coupe, it is reported to be in fairly good condition.

Young is reported to have been meticulous in the care of his machine, keeping it in good condition and polished It is dark blue in color. His habit of taking good care of the car was confirmed by his wife and by his employer, who said he frequently washed his truck.

Beside the statewide police alarm Sheriff Retterer also is keeping in close touch with the Tuscarawas county sheriff's office at New Philadelphia, former home of the Youngs

Arrived Jan. 9

Sheriff Retterer talked to Mrs Lillian Young, wife of the accused man, this afternoon at her trailer home She said the family moved here last Jan. 9 from New Philadelphia, living until about a month ago in a small house a short distance east of the Pleasant Township school. They moved to the Midlam avenue trailer from there

Before locating here Young had been a coal trucker, working for the Tony Glass Truck lines of New Philadelphia Last fall he inquired about a job with the Hall company here and was told to come back in the spring. Mrs. Young said that early this spring the Hall company was unable to put him to work since wet weather was delaying operations

In the meantime Young worked about 30 days at the Marion Power Shovel Co plant, leaving there to finally take the truck driving job with the Hall company

Mrs Young told the sheriff she had no idea where her husband might have gone. The sheriff quoted Tuscarawas county Sheriff John McIntosh as saying he was told by Mrs Young's relatives that Young sometimes "hid out' in Kentucky or Pennsylvania when he was in trouble

Young, his wife said, was born in Jewett, O She did not know the date. As a young man he lived in Uhrichsville, where he became acquainted with his wife.

The report that Young had served two prison sentences on forgery charges first was given here by the Tuscarawas county sheriff Mrs. Young confirmed this, saying her husband had been imprisoned before they were married five years ago Young is reported to have a brother, Henry, living in New Philadelphia His mother, whose name was not learned here, also lives there.

Certain Young's the Man

Although Sheriff Retterer is considering no other possibility than that Young is the man he wants, he is not positive Young will be found alive. The sheriff remarked this morning that he would not be surprised if Young and his car eventually were found in one of many water-filled quarry pits in this vicinity.

"We are not counting strongly on this possibility however, and expect to press the search in every way possible," he said.

Retterer said no attempt would be made immediately to search quarries unless no trace was found of the hunted man within the next few days.

Officers were undecided whether torn places in the blouse Mrs Gerbes was wearing were an indication of a struggle before she met her death That she could have put up a fight for her life is indicated by the fact that her weight was estimated at 135 pounds Measurements at the Smith Home for Funerals placed her height at five feet, eight inches.

An Afternoon Meeting

In their foray around central Ohio yesterday afternoon officers questioned a man in a nearby town who admitted he had seen Mrs Gerbes Thursday afternoon about 12 hours before she met her death He told the officers he had entered a "beer place to cash a check." He said he asked Mrs Gerbes, whom he had never seen before, if she would like to take a ride She accepted. After buying 10 bottles of beer the couple "drove along the river bank" where they drank the beer. Later he took Mrs Gerbes home

Although unemployed at the time of her death Mrs. Gerbes had worked as a waitress here Among places at which she was employed are the coffee shop in the former Kumfort Hotel and the old Royal Night club.

New Coronary Treatment

THE treatment of diseased coronary vessels with Dicumarol, a drug which delays clotting of the blood, in addition to the established methods of control, represents the first step in the form of a positive approach to the problem, states a St Louis physician in the June 7 issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association

O P J. Falk, M.D., Assistant Professor of Clinical Medicine, St Louis University School of Medicine, believes that the drug may combat the tendency for extension of the thrombus or clot attached to the diseased vein be asked to use Dicumarol in toward phlebothrombosis, which is potentially fatal because of the danger that the clot will become detached and be carried by the blood stream to the heart where it may act as a plug and cause death

Dicumarol is prepared from spoiled sweet clover The drug was discovered when hemorrhagic disease, studied in cattle, was traced to the eating of improperly cured hay or silage from the common sweet clovers.

Patients must be hospitalized before Dicumarol treatment is begun. However, the author points out, treatment with this drug, which is given by mouth, should not be attempted unless the laboratory is prepared to make daily tests of the clotting ability of the blood of each patient.

The author does not advise Dicumarol for patients who bleed easily, have advanced liver disease, a history of ulcer or recent hemorrhages of the gastrointestinal tract and kidney damage.

"The American Heart association is setting up a committee under the chairmanship of Dr Irving S Wright," according to Dr Falk, "composed of the heads of large medical services who will be asked to use Dicumarol in alternate cases in an attempt to evaluate its influence on mortality Wright has treated 80 patients, in whom the anticipated mortality appears to have been reduced at least a third by comparison with previous series on conventional therapy"

Colored Association Denies Wallace Fight

WASHINGTON, July 12—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People says it did not oppose the June 16 speech here of Henry A Wallace, but appeared in court to defend his right to speak

The NAACP appeared in court at the same time to back Wallace. None of the three organizations was heard by the court.

In a statement, the association described itself as having "1,500 local chapters scattered throughout 44 states, the District of Columbia and the Territory of Hawaii.

"It has 550,000 white and colored dues-paying members In addition, it has hundreds of thousands of friends and well-wishers It has been in existence since 1909 and enjoys a reputation in the field of civil rights."

chamber and asked them to have the police pick the fellow up.

"The fellow was a patronage seeker and a capitol cop under my predecessor. I saw him yesterday just outside the senate chamber"

Bricker laughed as he recounted how he and MaComber crouched down in the subway car trying to avoid being targets.

"I don't know who was ducking more,' he said.

John Eckler, administrative assistant to the senator, told reporters the man who fired the shots had lost his job on the government payroll.

Capitol police said the weapon used apparently was a 22 caliber pistol Empty shells of that type were found in the subway.

'The man has talked with Senator Bricker numerous times," Eckler said "He complained that he had lost some money in a building and loan association some years back But the senator said he could do nothing about it."

As Bricker went down to the senate office building basement about noon to ride the monorail underground car to the capitol, Eckler said, the man approached, drew a pistol and fired.

"Senator Bricker told the car operator, 'we better get out of here I think that man is crazy'," Eckler recounted.

Assailant Disappears

A second shot was fired as the car moved away and the man with the gun disappeared.

Eckler said the theory the shots may have been blanks resulted from failure to find any traces of bullet marks

News of the incident spread about the capitol and Bricker soon was surrounded by other senators on the floor. He laughed as he told about what had happened.

BLACKWELL SHOOTS FOR PLACE AMONG PITCHING GREATS

CUBS TO PLAY LAST NIGHT'S RAINED OUT NEWARK TILT TODAY

Twin Bills Set Today, Tomorrow; Bruins in Exhibition Game Monday.

With rain forcing postponement of the Cub game at Newark last night a doubleneader is on tap for tonight starting at 6:30.

The scheduled twin bill at Newark tomorrow will give the two outfits a total of four games in two days. With nine pitchers several of whom have not seen action in many days Burbrink should be well stocked for hurlers for the quartet of games.

The scene shifts to Lincoln park next week. Monday, which is an open day in the schedule, will be filled with the Bruins playing the Cubs' Training School from Mansfield. As the Marion organization expects to receive players developed at Mansfield, the local officials want to see some of the neophytes in action in a real game. For that reason they will tangle with the group Monday night.

The boys in the training school at Mansfield come from all sections of the country sent there by regular Cub scouts who think the boys are potential pro material but lack some training. The boys secure a job in Mansfield and work four hours each day, usually in the forenoon and then practice and play games in the afternoon.

John Graney the young southpaw from Peery, Iowa, who has beeing doing fine jobs in relief for the Cubs is a graduate of the Mansfield school. The school is organized by Cub scout Tony Lucadello and when he is on the road looking over other material thon Jim Lymper, Mansfield, takes over. Both will be here for the game Monday. Regular Ohio State league umpires have been secured to work the game.

Zanesville Wins To Gain on Idle Cubs

By The Associated Press

Two shutouts and a slugging match highlighted last night's festivities in the Ohio State league.

The league-leading Zanesville Dodgers picked up a half-game over rained-out Marion when Murray Kane blanked the cellar-dweiling Lima Terriers, 5-0. The Dodgers now lead by five games.

Dayton's Joe Jackson equalled Kane's five-hit job at Richmond, Ind., in blanking the Roses, 7-0, with the help of outfielder Paul Smith's hefty bat.

Muncie's Packers led only briefly before Springfield got Tony West his 12th victory of the year, 17-9, with a robust 18-hat attack.

Kane's triumph was highlighted by the fact that he didn't permit a single Terrier to advance beyond second base. Jackson struck out eight at Richmond while annexing his eighth triumph of the season.

The league's lone homer was a grand-slam blow by Muncie's Len Lamont, first baseman, over Springfield's distant centerfield barrier.

Newark and Marion will make up their postponement tonight with a doubleheader at Newark.

Whips Boston To Stretch Win Streak To Thirteen

By The Associated Press

Ewell Blackwell of Cincinnati is taking dead aim on a place among the National league's modern day pitching greats with a 13-game win streak that has been surpassed by only four hurlers in the older circuit since 1900.

The all-time record is 19 in a row held jointly by Rube Marquard in 1912 and Tim Keefe in 1888, both of the New York Nationals. Carl Hubbell sewed together a string of 16 in 1936 for the New York Giants.

Even a 30-game winning season is not beyond the reach of Blackwell, whose Cincinnati Reds have not played half of their 154 games. The last National to hit the 30 mark was Dizzy Dean of the St. Louis Gas House Gang in 1934.

"Blacky" was not up to his usual form in last night's 10-6 decision over Boston as he was nicked for 11 hits. However it was his ninth straight complete game since June 1 when he was lifted for a pinch hitter at the Polo grounds.

Bums Enjoy Blackwell

Brooklyn enjoyed Blackwell's success at long range, having shut out Chicago, 5-0, before the Boston returns were in. The Braves' loss and Dodger victory upped their National league lead to a cozy three full games.

The St. Louis Cardinals' march through the east was halted by the New York Giants who were beaten 4-3 on homers by Del Rice and Ron Northey in the first game of a doubleneader. The Giants overcame a five-run Cardinal first inning with eight in their half and went on to subdue the Red Birds 17-9 in a game mercifully halted by darkness in the eighth.

Billy Cox's four hits highlighted the Pittsburgh Pirates' 7-2 night game romp over the Phillies for Ernie Bonham's seventh success

Yankees Win Tenth

The New York Yankees stretched their win streak to 10, the longest in the majors this season, by subduing St. Louis, 3-1. Allie Reynolds, who hadn't won away from the friendly confines of the Yankee stadium since April 18, finally beat his road jinx with the help of Johnny Lindell's hitting.

As Detroit and Boston split two, the Yanks' lead now measures nine games over both the Tigers and Red Sox. Tex Hughson tamed Detroit in the opener, 4-3 decisioning Dizzy Trout, but Stubby Overmire squared matters with a four-hit shutout, 3-0, to hand Denny Galehouse his first Boston setback

The Philadelphia Athletics bounced back from their no-hit no-run loss to Cleveland's Don Black and clubbed out a 4-2 margin over the Tribe for Phil Marchildon's ninth victory.

Washington climbed into sixth place over Chicago by topping the White Sox, 4-3, in a Comiskey park night game.

Ewell Falls Apart But Braves Lose To No-Hit Jitters

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, June 12 — The Boston Braves today sought a cure for the Blackwell jitters, a condition that might have had its beginning the night of June 18 when elongated Ewell, the Cincinnati Reds fireballing righthander, picked on Billy Southworth's boys to turn in the first no-hit game of the 1947 major league season.

Blackwell registered his 13th straight and 15th mound victory of the season last night as the Reds downed the Braves, 10-6, before 27,701 fans who saw one of the sloppiest games of the season.

The skinny pitcher was off form but the Braves were worse, committing six errors, two of them in the sixth when Cincinnati counted twice without benefit of a safe hit.

Blackwell gave up 11 hits, issued four passes and fanned only three.

The Reds, sparked by Bert Haas who banged out two triples in four times at bat, battered Johnny Sain, Clyde Shoun and Walt Lanfronconi for 14 safeteis.

Cincinnati counted three times in the first inning then let the Braves tie it up with markers in the first, third and fourth innings, but the Reds went ahead to stay in the sixth.

The U. S. federal park system includes 26 parks, four historical parks, 82 monuments, 11 military parks, eight battlefield sites, six historic sites, one recreation area, nine miscellaneous memorials, 12 cemeteries and three parkways.

New York May "Secede" From Boxing "Union" If Rocky Wins

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 12—The picture of New York "seceding" from the union—as far as the world middleweight championship is concerned—and declaring the crown vacant popped up today as a possibility if Rock-A-Bye Rocky Graziano takes Tony Zale's title away in Chicago next Wednesday.

The New York state athletic commission definitely will not give back to the belter from New York's lower east side the license that was taken away from him last January because he failed to report a bribe offer of $100,000 that he insisted he thought was "a gag".

Commission Chairman Eddie Eagan made Graziano's standing plain today in talking about the possibilities from Wednesday's wallop party. Then, getting around to what would happen if Graziano should win the middleweight bauble, Eagan said the commission hasn't gone into this little matter yet, but that it was possible the fistic fathers would just say there isn't any champ at all. The fathers, of course, will find it especially difficult to convince Gus Fan and his missus about that, if Rocky's number is hung up at the end of the Chicago taffy-pull.

Two-Day Rifle Shoot Begins at Mt. Gilead

By The Associated Press

MT. GILEAD, O., July 12 — Crack rifle shots from Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky today launched the two-day North Central Regional tournament, sponsored by the Ohio Rifle and Pistol association, a preliminary to the national matches at Camp Perry, O., next month.

Officials estimated that 200 entrants would fire about 70,000 rounds of .22 caliber ammunition during the two-day competition.

A'S, CLEVELAND TO MEET TWICE TODAY

Doubleheader Booked in Battle for Fourth Place.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 12 — The unpredictable Cleveland Indians and the surprising Philadelphia Athletics were to meet in a doubleheader today in another renewal of their fight for fourth place in the American league.

Connie Mack's hustling A's moved to within one-half game of the fourth-place Tribe by virtue of a 4-2 victory yesterday, and a clean sweep of the double bill would put the Mackmen solidly in the first division.

Al Gettal and Les Willis were to work for the Indians, opposing Jesse Flores and Joe Coleman.

Yesterday's contest was just a case of too much Philadelphia pitching as the Tribe was held to four hits, one of them Eddie Robinson's eighth home run of the season.

Phil Marchildon gained the decision although he needed help from both Bob Savage and Russ Christopher. Red Embree, who has not won a game since May 29, was tagged with the defeat.

The A's scored what proved the winning run in the seventh. Singles by Eddie Joost, Fain and Sam Chapman were good for the tie-breaking marker.

Larry Doby, first Negro to play in the American league, made his home debut for the Indians in the seventh when he batted for Embree. He cracked a hopper to Joost who fumbled the ball for an error.

SHRINE BENEFIT TILT TICKETS REPORTED TO BE SELLING WELL

Chairman Says Goal of 4,000 May Be Reached Before Saturday.

First reports indicate that ticket sales to the second annual Shrine benefit game at Lincoln park next Saturday are progressing favorably, according to Earl J. Andrews, chairman of the Shrine baseball committee.

The goal of the club is to sell 4,500 tickets to the game at $1 each.

Marion will play Springfield in a regular Ohio State league game starting at 8 p. m.

Fans will want to show up earlier though, because a colorful pre-game program is planned.

The Columbus Aladdin Temple 100-piece band and a drill corps from the temple will play.

A souvenir program, which will be given to all persons attending the game, will include a roster of the Marion Shrine club, National Shrine clubs, and Shrine hospitals throughout the country.

Money raised through the ticket sale will go to the Shrine crippled children's hospital in Columbus.

The Marion chapter of the club was organized in the early 1920's and reorganized in 1944.

Wendell Wiant is president, Carl Danner, vice president, and James R. Folsom, secretary-treasurer.

LANDLORD UPS RENT TO TEST NEW LAW

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., July 12 — Hearing on an injunction seeking to prevent an apartment landlord from raising rents 40 to 60 per cent will be conducted July 21 before Federal Judge Paul Jones.

The landlord, Cloyd W. Miller, had "no comment" today on the petition filed by Paul Marshall, chief of the rent enforcement division of the OHE here.

Miller owns an apartment building on the East Side, 1871 East 97th street, and notified his tenants that beginning Aug. 1 the rents on 15 apartments would go up 40 per cent, with rates on five furnished rooms increasing 60 per cent.

If granted, the injunction would require the landlord to retain present rentals unless the tenants voluntarily agreed to increases of 15 per cent under a lease.

In publicly announcing the intended to make a test of the constitutionality of the new rent control law, and said he doubted its validity because "there is no emergency."

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

I GAVE Mary a deliberately derisive grin, at her plaint about not disturbing Katharine.

"What's jiggling the risibles?" she inquired saucily.

"Your gullibility," I retorted. "Aunt Katharine is no more asleep than we are."

"But she said she was going to have a nap on that most delectable couch in the sitting room," she protested.

"I grant you that," I told her. "But Aunt Katharine slept well last night, or so she told me, and she rarely takes a nap in the daytime."

"I knew she was giving you an out," Mary said, "so you wouldn't be embarrassed by extra auditors when you were reading that first act of your play aloud to me. She knew that you couldn't put on the extra frills with her around. But she sure had me fooled with that sleep talk. I'd have bet a smacker that she was asleep."

"And you would have lost," I said placidly. "Now I'll call her, but I warn you that she'll probably make you lie down for a few minutes before the bridge game. And that will fit in all right. Your uncle wants a few minutes warning before he leaves his work."

"Oh!" Mary exclaimed in quick alarm. "Is Uncle Dicky working? He ought not to stop to play bridge with me."

Delighted With an Excuse

"Don't 'talk foolishness with yoh mouf!'" I quoted. "You know very well that your uncle is always delighted to find an excuse to pass up a routine bit of work such as he's doing today. If it were a rush order, it would be hard to get him away. But he'll be down, don't worry!"

I waved a sympathetic forefinger at old Sapphira for the falsehood I was telling about Dicky's work. It was a rush order, and he was planning to work at it all night if he should be interrupted by the bridge game. But he was putting Mary's welfare before anything else, and I knew that nothing would enrage him more than to let her guess he was sacrificing anything for her.

"I'll call Aunt Katharine now," I said. "Then I'll get in touch with your uncle. But first, I'll find out what your nurse says about the bridge game—the time of it, I mean."

I walked to the door, opened it, and found, as I expected, that Katharine was reading in a comfortable chair near the window.

"I thought you were going to sleep," I said reproachfully.

"I tried," she replied, with apparent candor, "but I couldn't manage it, so I read an especially dull article instead. I got almost the same soporific benefit," she finished with a grin, then added a postscript.

"What's on your mind now?" she asked.

Wanted a Check

"Mary wants the bridge game," I said, "and I wanted you to check on her before I went to call Dicky."

"I'll be with you immediately," she said. "How's she doing?"

"All right, I think," I said, in tones that Mary could hear. If she wanted Katharine to know about her putting in an extra word into the three lines she was memorizing, I would let her give out that information herself. But of course I knew that if Katharine needed the information, I would have to give it to her later, but without Mary's knowledge.

My bonny kinswoman—it is the adjective that I always associate with her—rose from her chair, replaced the magazine in the rack and walked into the bedroom with the effortless grace which always is hers.

"Let's have a look at you," she told Mary, and then, as her keen eyes swept her patient's face, she put a quick question.

"What's the matter?" she asked.

"How do you know anything is?" Mary parried.

"It's my business to know," Katharine told her. "I'd be a mighty poor nurse if I didn't have good eyes and ears for trouble. But you needn't tell me if you don't want to. It isn't anything that's laid you out, if you're ready for a bridge game, as your devoted aunt tells me you are."

"I'd just as soon tell you," Mary said. "I studied three more lines of my role, and when I recited them, I had put in an extra word."

"Isn't that just terrible?" Katharine said mockingly. "How long did she study the lines, Madge?"

"About fifteen minutes," I said. "And you wonder at flopping on one word after a year of what you've had, and the extra strain you're under today! It's a wonder to me you remembered any of the words."

Her words and tone not only sounded sincere but were indeed genuine. I knew that; knew that Mary did, too, when the tenseness went out of her eyes.

"No more study until this particular hurdle of your Aunt Harriet is over," Katharine said. "Now I'm going to give you another alcohol rub. Madge, tell Dicky the bridge game is scheduled for a half hour from now. This girl is going to be under my thumb until then."

FARM-CARE ADVICE

WASHINGTON — Heading the list of farm accident victims are those hurt or killed by farm machinery. Many of these accidents are caused by operators leaving guards off the mower blade, or leaving the gears, chains, and shafts exposed where they will catch clothes. Another common cause of machinery accidents is the effort to unchoke a mower, thresher, or feed grinder with the power source still running. Time may be gained, and lives saved by stopping the machine for the few minutes needed in oiling or making repairs.
